

Summarised Friday Sermon

24th March 2006

Upholding Islamic Principles at All Times

- Rasulullah s.a.w once said in a hadith which means: “There will come a time when those who are patient in their religion, will be like the ones who have burning coal in their hands.”

- Life at this age has much exposure. There are many things that can lead a Muslim away from his Islamic principles. A Muslim can choose whichever path he wants. In practising religion in today’s context and living in a multi-racial society, we must be wise in adapting ourselves, and not sacrificing our Islamic principles at the same time, especially in issues of faith and good character.

- As Muslims, we must be wise in using it. With a strong faith, we will be God-conscious wherever we are. We will not visit websites, which are unbeneficial such as porn sites and others. Instead we should use the Internet to spread the message about our religion, Islam.

- We must remember the limits placed by our religion. Everything is clear. We must ensure that our Islamic principles are not compromised. We should explain to the society our limits and boundaries. We must be wise in explaining all the wrong misconceptions about our religion.

- We also need to show good character wherever we are, because that is the true personality of a Mukmin. By doing this, we will be able to adapt without compromising our faith or good character.

Summarised by Darul Makmur Mosque, Mosque Without Borders